Welcome to
New Forest Centenary Club Site

This site is 2.5 miles from the pleasant village of Bransgore in the New Forest National Park. Originally part of a Second World War airfield, some of the original runway still exist. There is also a memorial to the New Forest Airfields just to the north of the site.

Set amidst beautiful countryside, the site has an open aspect, and is home to the Club’s celebratory Centenary Garden. There is also a dog walk, play equipment and a playing field for younger members.

The site is a great base from which to explore by foot or bike, and cycle routes start within 500 yards. It’s also conveniently located to visit Christchurch, Poole and Bournemouth, and the other beaches and resorts of the nearby coastline.

The New Forest has something for everyone. As well as the thrill of seeing wild horses grazing, you can take a stroll through idyllic glades and ancient woodland, take cliff top walks and visit one of the many attractions located within the park.
